THE NATIVE LENAPE CALLED IT WAUWASET. Swedish colonists, who settled the lower stretches of the river in the 1630s, dubbed it the “Fish Kill,” as it teemed with shad and alewives in those days. But it is to the Dutch that we most likely owe the familiar name for the storied creek that is a defining feature of Hagley’s landscape. One plausible tale has it that the river was named for a shipwrecked seventeenth-century vessel that was transporting a cargo of spirits—brandewijn (a brandy or gin)—when it was lost. Historians have also pointed to Andreas Brantwyn, an early Dutch mill owner, as a likely source for the name of this storied river. And by the way, don’t even wade into the discussion about whether it is a “creek” or a “river”—even contemporary geographers can’t agree on that one.

That the Brandywine Creek (yes, I prefer “creek”) has answered to many names over the centuries testifies to the fact that this storied waterway has meant many different things to many people who have lived and worked along its banks. Even over the past four centuries since European settlement, the Brandywine has been valued from a variety of perspectives. Some settlers have viewed it foremost as a source of fish and nurturer of abundant wildlife. For farmers, tradespeople, and manufacturers, it has served as an important conduit for foodstuffs and goods; the milling sites that developed alongside relied on its swift current for water power. And several generations of artists in the “Brandywine School” have drawn inspiration from its picturesque elements.

Don’t even wade into the discussion about whether it is a “creek or a “river.”

I am mindful of these many perspectives as we approach summer, when Hagley will offer multiple programs featuring the Brandywine: Bike & Hike & Brews; Fishing on the Brandywine; wooden boat races; and our always popular Powder Yard tours. Each of these activities encourages visitors to see the creek from a different point of view and to appreciate its rugged vitality, its many uses, and its beauty. But don’t take my word for it—I’ll see you on the Brandywine this summer!

Summer Fun at Hagley!

SUMMERTIME IS HAGLEY'S PRIME TIME! With Bike & Hike & Brews, Fireworks at Hagley, and Summer Saturdays, visitors have plenty of opportunities to enjoy the outdoors by the Brandywine's most beautiful mile. Check out the next few pages and mark your calendars.

Hagley's Bike & Hike & Brews returns for its twenty-first year this summer. Presented by Dogfish Head Craft Brewery, this popular event will feature Dogfish Head beer for purchase every Wednesday.

Bike along the river, hike up to the residence, then head up Workers' Hill to the new Workers' Hill Pavilion to buy a brew or some of Woodside Farm Creamery's delicious locally made ice cream, also available for purchase each Wednesday. Enjoy a picnic dinner or a bite from the Belin House Café.

Your furry friends can also enjoy Bike & Hike & Brews. The last Wednesday of each month—June 26, July 31, & August 28—features the popular dog nights during which visitors are invited to bring their leashed four-legged friends to enjoy the walk along the Brandywine.

Fireworks at Hagley

KERRY HARRISON

HAGLEY'S ANNUAL FIREWORKS SHOW is often considered the kickoff to the summer season for Hagley members, some of whom have attended Hagley's shows yearly for decades. The show has been called "The Best Fireworks in Delaware" and is a wonderful evening of food, music, and fun, culminating in a spectacular display of pyrotechnics.

This year, Fireworks at Hagley, presented by M&T Bank and Wilmington Trust, celebrates "A Treasure Trove," the amazing items that can be found in Hagley's collections.

Through music and narrative, the show will explore collections that made a significant impact on America's history, architecture, technology, communications, and even safety. From papers about Napoleon's abdication at Fontainebleau, to Elmer Sperry's scientific notebooks, to Stephanie Kwolek's invention of Kevlar, Hagley's collections represent a trove of historical treasure.

If you've never been to Hagley's Fireworks, you're missing a truly unique fireworks experience. Unlike most fireworks shows, the rockets are launched (safely!) near the viewing area, filling visitors' field of view with fantastic colorful bursts and explosions that they can both hear and feel.

Hagley's fireworks is a members-only event. If you haven't received your invitation, or if you missed your member e-mail to purchase tickets online, please contact Membership Manager Kim Kelleher at kkelleher@hagley.org or (302) 658-2400.

Enjoy Summertime Fun for All Ages at Hagley

SUMMER IS A TIME for taking it easy and enjoying the simple fun of life. Visitors can do that at Hagley's Summer Saturdays.

A special feature of the Summer Saturdays lineup is the Nineteenth-Century Faire on June 29. Visitors can experience an old-fashioned carnival with games, homemade food, and prizes. The Tapestry Historic Dance Ensemble will demonstrate Victorian dances in period outfits. For a twenty-first century flair, visitors can take a selfie in nineteenth-century clothing.

In between Summer Saturdays, Hagley members and visitors can explore Science Saturdays with experiments, demonstrations, and challenges. Visit www.hagley.org/scisat for Science Saturday topics. Every day this summer, families can enjoy "Science Sparks!" on the second floor of the Visitor Center. Fun STEAM activities are offered 12:30-4:30 p.m. daily. All these summer adventures are included with general admission.

Hagley Store Transformed

THE BEAUTIFUL STONE BUILDING that houses the Hagley Store has an interesting past as part of the textile tradition of mills along the Brandywine. It was built in 1822-1823 for the cleaning and picking of raw cotton that supported the cotton spinning mill next door, now the Hagley Visitor Center. Baled cotton had to be unpacked and the fibers loosened, fluffed, and picked clean of seeds. This step in the textile operation was hazardous and likely to cause a fire. Therefore, the building was designed to be fireproof and built entirely of stone, brick, and iron. When the DuPont Company took over the building in the 1880s, it was used to store paints, as a carpenter's shop, and for making metal caps for powder kegs.

The building has once again been transformed, with a new look for the Hagley Store. While the brick arches still extend down the center aisle lending a fine architectural detail to the interior, new display fixtures, merchandise, and lighting welcome shoppers. With an eye toward the industrial heritage of the region, the store now features gifts and decorative items with a Brandywine flair. Limited edition gifts and custom orders will soon be available.

Kate Blumen started in late February as the new Hagley Store manager. Before joining Hagley, she served as business development officer for Manx National Heritage on the Isle of Man, where she was responsible for merchandise at all heritage sites. While at the Frick Art & Historical Center in Pittsburgh, she oversaw a rebranding of its store, the creation of custom merchandise, and all store operations.

The store is open at 10 a.m. daily. Please stop in and meet Kate!

Hagley Witnesses Design History in the Making

HAGLEY STAFF MEMBERS THIS YEAR joined 60,000 retailers, designers, manufacturers and other attendees at the International Home and Housewares Show. Hagley Library holds the archives of the International Housewares Association, which is responsible for this event, the largest annual trade show in Chicago and the 14th largest in the United States. The show, first held in 1939, hosts 2,200 exhibitors from more than 50 countries, and buyers from 130 countries. Hagley staffers hope relationships started at the show might lead to collaborations with other members of the industry through Hagley Heritage Curators.

Since the second half of the twentieth century, booklets, floor plans, and audiovisual advertisements documenting and promoting this show have been sent to Hagley for archiving. The records give a good overview of the evolution of domestic consumer products and the consumer goods industry.

With Hagley's own interest in innovation, staff members enjoyed seeing the winners of the IHA Global Innovation Awards in product design. Highlights included a vase that can be adjusted to the height of flowers, and reusable silicone bags that come in a convenient stand-up design. The Student Design Competition showcased improved designs for children, the elderly, and people with disabilities. First place student awards went to a home security system for the hearing-impaired and a knife and chopping board set for the blind. Representatives from the United States Patent and Trademark Office had a table near the Inventors Revue. Inventors pitched their new ideas to a panel of judges in an atmosphere similar to that of the TV show Shark Tank.

The Creativity of Female Inventors

HAGLEY IS EXPANDING THE POTENTIAL OUTREACH of the Fred M.B. Amram & Sandra A. Brick Woman Inventor Collection. Portions will be uploaded onto the museum online browser over the summer. Beginning in 2004, they donated a remarkable collection to Hagley and wanted their collection used to inspire others. "It was created to celebrate woman's ingenuity and encourage the slowly growing proportion of patents issued to women," they wrote. "In the nineteenth century, about 1/2 of 1 percent of patents included the name of a woman. During 1957 that number was only 1 1/2 percent and by the beginning of the twenty-first century roughly 12 percent of patents were received by women."

More than 900 artifacts represent the inventions of 183 women, from the nineteenth to the twenty-first centuries, with a strong focus of twentieth-century inventions. The collection, already available to researchers, also includes subject research files for more than 250 women inventors. Here are some of their stories:

Marjorie Stewart Joyner (1896-1994), the first African-American graduate of the A. B. Moler Beauty School, invented a permanent hair-wave machine in 1928.

Patsy O'Connell Sherman (1930-2008) worked at 3M and was known for her co-invention with Samuel Smith of Scotchgard, the stain repellent.

Ruth Benerito (1916-2013) was a chemist who worked for the Department of Agriculture. Her work on wash and wear cotton fabrics resulted in fifty-five patents.

Melitta Bentz (1873-1950) lived in Germany and invented the coffee filter.

Susan Anderson in the 1980s created dolls with disabilities named Hal's Pals that were sold by Mattel. These dolls were intended to help children with the same disabilities.

Personal Memories in a Girl's Hand Fan

DURING THE VICTORIAN ERA and up to now, scrapbooks have been a popular way to preserve memories of activities, people, and images. The word “scrap” refers to colorful die-cut images that were cut out and displayed in a variety of ways, such as gluing them in scrapbooks and making Christmas tree decorations. For a short period in the late nineteenth century, such scraps were glued onto the back of black paper hand fans, mostly made in Japan with a small white flower design.

Hagley Museum’s extensive ladies’ hand fan collection has a wonderful du Pont family example of a late-Victorian scrap hand fan. Owned by Irene Sophie du Pont (1877-1961), this fan shows a glimpse of her world between 1890 and 1895, when she was thirteen to eighteen years old. Irene was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gurney du Pont, and in 1900 she married Irénée du Pont.

The back of the fan is filled with cut-outs from hotels throughout the mid-Atlantic, American flags, eagles, and monograms. A few are dated, including one from 1895 for International Cricket at Manheim.

Her father, who supervised the DuPont Company smokeless gunpowder plant at Carney’s Point, New Jersey, inspired one of the few items on the front of her fan: a green DuPont Smokeless Powder keg. Irene’s fan is on display at Eleutherian Mills Residence this summer and fall, and more du Pont items can be seen at www.hagley.org/collection.

150,000 Railroad Images Donated

HAGLEY LIBRARY HAS ACQUIRED the Herbert Harwood Jr. Railroad and Transportation Collection of photographic negatives. Comprising nearly 150,000 images covering all of the twentieth century, the collection includes Harwood's own work as a railroad photographer as well as the work of others. In the collection are photographs from many notable photographers active in the 1930s and '40s as well as the work of his father-in-law, George M. Beischer, who served as the chief mechanical officer for several railroads, including Amtrak.

Harwood began taking photographs as a teenager in Washington, D.C., in the 1940s. After earning a degree in history at Princeton, he took a job with the Chesapeake & Ohio. "I knew the railroad industry was dying, but I didn't care," he told The Baltimore Sun in 1996. "I just wanted a job in the railroad." At the time of his retirement, he worked as chief administrative officer in the commercial department for the Chessie System, a holding company that included the C&O and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

In addition to his work as a photographer and collector, Harwood is a prolific author and railroad historian with seventeen books and many magazine articles to his credit. He published his first book in 1969. His most recent work, titled The Railroad That Never Was, is about the history of the never-completed late-nineteenth-century rail line that later became the foundation for the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Hagley staffers are grateful to Harwood for donating his important collection here. They look forward to making it available to railroad researchers for many years to come.

FOR THE PAST TWENTY YEARS, Hagley Museum and Library has partnered with the Business History Conference to offer an annual prize for the best book in business history. The prize committee is particularly interested in innovative studies that have the potential to expand the boundaries of scholarship in business history.

Hagley Library benefits directly from the competition, since a copy of each book submitted for consideration is accessioned into the library collection. The library has received up to 100 books per year in this fashion.

The Hagley Book Prize for best book of 2018 was awarded to Per Hansen for Danish Modern Furniture, 1930-2016: The Rise, Decline and Re-emergence of a Cultural Market Category. Scandinavian furniture has an almost mythological aura in popular culture and has been studied exhaustively in art history and design history. Hansen applies a business historian's critical eye, along with his own enthusiasm, to determine how the stories and myths about Danish furniture design were constructed. He explores the roles of the designers, manufacturers, promoters, critics, and chroniclers, all of whom had a hand in constructing the cultural phenomenon of Danish modern design. Hansen's book is a fascinating read.

A full list of Hagley Book Prize recipients can be found at www.hagley.org/prize. Winning titles are available to be read at Hagley Library as well.

EACH SPRING WHEN I REFLECT ON HAGLEY'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS over the past year, I am reminded of how our unique programs and projects continue to attract new audiences and visitors to this historic site along the Brandywine River. Enhancing the visitor experience at Hagley continues to be a top priority.

Since my last report a year ago, work has progressed on Hagley's mission to restore various features of the powder yard complex, which includes our waterwheels, millraces, and mill buildings. These historic structures stand as the proud legacy of both the du Pont family and DuPont Company. We take our responsibility as stewards of these historic landmarks seriously and look forward to preserving them for generations to come.

Hagley has made great strides in historic preservation in 2018 through the generosity of the 1817 Society. There are two projects that we are particularly proud of. First, is the stabilization of mill building No. 16. Over the course of the summer and fall, workers repointed and repaired this historic structure within the powder yards complex. The second is the restoration of a second turbine on the property. This equipment, dating to the 1880s, will harness water power from the Brandywine and power an electric bus that was purchased last year. This is a key component of Hagley's efforts to celebrate green power.

You may recall last year that Hagley was buzzing with excitement about its patent model exhibition in China. I am delighted to report that the exhibition at Tsinghua University was an overwhelming success. The exhibition of sixty of Hagley's patent models at Tsinghua was so well received that the Chinese government requested its own installation of our models at the National Museum of China on Tiananmen Square. "Power of Innovation: Patent Models from the United States of America" showcased the stories of invention and innovation that tell the story of the United States patent system in the 1800s. The exhibition was seen by more than two million visitors.

Similarly, work continues in the library to enhance Hagley's current holdings, as well as provide access to both remote and on-site researchers. Catalyst, Inc., an organization that works to accelerate progress for women through workplace inclusion, deposited its records at Hagley in 2018, as did the Associated General Contractors of America. These two collections, as well as many others, will prove to be a valuable resource to scholars worldwide. Last year also saw the digitization of an important collection highlighting the stories of those who lived and worked in the Hagley powder yards. In addition to transcripts, researchers and visitors can now access the voices of the interviewees.

I would like to thank all of you who continue to contribute to Hagley. Whether you are a donor to the Hagley Fund, a Corporate Partner, or donor to the 1817 Society, Hagley could not offer our array of educational programs and restore our landmark property without your support. In addition, I am most appreciative of talented staff, volunteers, committee members, and trustees. Without their tireless devotion to Hagley, Hagley would not enjoy the great success that it does. I look forward to seeing all of you in the coming year.

UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED, ACTIVITIES LISTED ARE INCLUDED WITH ADMISSION AND FREE FOR MEMBERS AND CHILDREN FIVE AND UNDER.

Walking Tours – visit www.hagley.org for schedule

Hagley offers weekend walking tours exploring gunpowder production, water power, geology, life in an industrial village, Hagley's gardens, and explosions. Walking tours are included with admission, reservations requested at (302) 658-2400, ext. 261.

Science Saturdays – hagley.org/scisat for schedule and topics

Experiment and innovate with Hagley's series of science activities. Visitors use their creativity to make scientific discoveries.

MAY 5 – SUNDAY – 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Sunday Stroll

Take a stroll at Hagley! Hagley's property will be open to give visitors a unique opportunity to take a leisurely walk to the residence and garden, normally only accessible by bus. The three-mile roundtrip walk to the family home and back will be open for guests to wander and enjoy the beauty of the property. Also held June 2, July 7, August 4, and September 1.

MAY 9 – THURSDAY – 7 P.M.

Author Talk: "The Rise and Fall of Activist Entrepreneurs: How the 1960s Changed Business"

Historian Joshua Clark Davis will uncover the roots of these movements in the political and social activism of the 1960s and '70s. Free, reservations requested, call (302) 658-2400, ext. 243, or contact jstewart@hagley.org. Held in the Soda House Auditorium, use Hagley's Buck Road entrance.

MAY 27 – MONDAY – Memorial Day

Free admission for military veterans and their families.

WEDNESDAYS IN JUNE, JULY, & AUGUST STARTING JUNE 5 – 5 TO 8 P.M.

Bike & Hike & Brews presented by Dogfish Head Craft Brewery

Visitors can stroll, jog, or bike through areas of Hagley's property normally closed to foot traffic. Bring a picnic or dine at the Belin House Café. Dogfish Head beer and Woodside Farm Creamery ice cream will be available for purchase every Wednesday evening this summer. Visitors are invited to bring their leashed canine companions on the last Wednesday of each month (June 26, July 31, & August 28) for Dog Days of Summer. $3 per person, free for members and children five and under.

KERRY HARRISON

JUNE 10 – SEPTEMBER 2 – 12:30 – 4 P.M.

Science Sparks!

Explore a variety of STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math) activities to challenge your creativity during your school's summer break. Science Sparks! is a drop-in event on the second floor of the Visitor Center.

JUNE 14 & 21 – FRIDAYS – 5 P.M.

Fireworks at Hagley

Don't miss Delaware's best fireworks show! This members-only event is a spectacular evening of family fun. Tickets must be purchased in advance. Bring a picnic dinner, blankets, coolers, and chairs and enjoy pre-fireworks fun at Kids Central with games, face painting, and bounce-arounds, and a raffle and silent auction with great prizes. Bad weather dates are the following Saturdays and Sundays; check www.hagley.org for postponement announcements.

JUNE 15 – SATURDAY – 10:30 A.M. TO 3:30 P.M.

Summer Saturdays

Spend a summer Saturday at Hagley and enjoy activities from fishing to archaeology to croquet! This Saturday, enjoy fishing on the Brandywine and a seed planting activity. Included in admission and free for members. Also held June 29, July 6 & 20, August 3 & 17. Visit www.hagley.org for details.

JUNE 29 – SATURDAY – 10:30 A.M. TO 3:30 P.M.

Nineteenth-Century Faire

Step back in time to enjoy a festive fair with carnival games, period dancing, fresh lemonade, hand-cranked ice cream and much more.

JUNE 23 – SUNDAY – 1, 2, & 3 P.M.

Cannon Firing Demonstration

Have a blast at Hagley! Cannon firings demonstrate how black powder was made and used. Demonstrations take place next to the Millwright Shop. Also held May 27, June 23, July 4 & 28, August 25, September 29, October 27, & November 11.

JULY 4 – THURSDAY – Independence Day

Free admission for military veterans and their families.
